Privateers ... rumours of them being very active and brilliant combat pilots ... no idea where this is coming from. We are in war now with them for about 2 weeks and we have not seen just one organized operation of them vs us. All we have seen in several trading hubs is to sit outside a station and waiting for single targets to shoot on ...

Well brilliant maybe, they are using neutral non privateer pilots to backup them as well as ramming other ships to stay outside of dock range. All we have seen on this are 2~3 logistic ships as well as at least one ship to ram (if needed). However it didn't help. We killed the logistics as well as we killed the battleships.

We still don't know why the privateers attacked us or who paid them to declare war on us. However the end of 2 wars at the same time can be a hint on this:

111.11.06

The war between Privateer Alliance and Electus Matari is coming to an end. Privateer Alliance has retracted the war against Electus Matari. The war will be declared as being over after approximately 24 hours.

The exalted. war is over as well. After just two days they were starting to reject fights to us and leaving the area. Well they forced up to 20 pilots in heavy gangs as well and tried to play station games with electus matari. But our pilots and fleets stayed cool in this conflict and only fought when it was necessary. It looks like their plan did not go that well. According to rumours they were trying to regain morale by declaring an old known enemy to get the spread out members of their alliance together. Well - looks like they have failed this.
